DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1, 2, and 7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Moreau et al. (US 5,000,119), and further in view of Almeda (US 6,432,029).

Moreau et al. (Moreau) discloses the claimed invention except resilient bumpers are not positively disclosed. Moreau's device comprises a plurality of stalls 33, each having shoulder bars 53 guidingly locating the shoulders of an animal 18. The animal 18 is aligned along a longitudinal axis defined from head to rump of said animal 18. The addition of a cushion member or resilient bumper is a well-known modification in a device where a body part of a mammal comes into constant contact with a metal bar or member. Almeda shows an example of the use of such resilient bumper 32, 34, and 36 as a cushioning barrier between a metal bar and a user's body. Almeda teaches that elements 32, 34, and 36 are advantageous as they absorb forces exerted on the user's body, thus enhancing comfort and preventing injury. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Moreau's milking parlor by adding resilient bumpers to shoulder bars 53 in order to enhance the comfort and prevent injury of the cow using the stall.

Art Unit: 3644

Further regarding claim 2, Almeda's resilient bumpers are considered to flex outwardly away from the longitudinal axis when the cow presses against them. Also, since Moreau's bars 53 pivot, the stall can accommodate various sized cows and permit longitudinal movement of the cows when they are in the stalls.

Allowable Subject Matter

3. Claims 3-6 and 8-14 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
